

The House of the Red Shield

BY MERRITT NEWBY

AMSCHEL MAYER ROTHSCHILD, who learned his lessons well at the feet of his father in the "House of the Red Shield," uttered a truism that few people have heard: "Let me issue a nation's money, and I care not who writes its laws."

His father, Amschel Moses Bauer, was a goldsmith. He was very learned in the ways of making money from nothing. He loaned money, with interest, on other peoples' goods. On the front of his shop he hung a red shield as a trade mark. In time, the family took the name of Red Shield, or the German equivalent—Rothschild.

Son Enters Banking Business

Amschel Mayer went into the banking business. He, too, was very astute in the ways of making profit at the expense of others. One of his schemes was to buy, kidnap and train German soldiers and sell them to England to help fight their wars. It was this slave trade, of German soldiers, that established the monstrous Rothschild dynasty of wealth and power.

Of Amschel Mayer Rothschild's five politically and financially powerful sons, Nathan was probably the most diabolically clever. It was at the finish of Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo, at the hands of Wellington, that Nathan played his trump card. While he raced across the English Channel, he had a fellow conspirator release a carrier pigeon, taking the message to England that Wellington had been defeated. When Nathan landed on English soil he found what he expected. England was in a panic over the defeat of Wellington. Needless to say, the economy of England crashed at the news of Wellington's defeat. Nathan Rothschild reaped a fantastic harvest from his big lie! We must no longer delude ourselves that panic, wars and depression are not very scientifically planned. Here is a sickening example of how our very lives are manipulated.

Take Over Bank of England

With an almost unlimited supply of money it was very simple for the five Rothschild brothers and their kin to take over the Bank of England, and topple governments at will. All the time they were capitalizing on their own manipulation of these same governments.

The little New England Colonies of America appeared to be fertile fields for these swindlers. The Colonies had issued their own money and they prospered. When Benjamin Franklin was in England he reported that the success of the Colonies was "... in the Colonies we issue our own money. It is called 'Colonial Scrip' —and we issue it in the proper proportion to the demands of trade and industry." The Swindlers couldn't take that. The undercover planning began, and as a result, the Colonists were told they must cease issuing their own money. Thus the Revolutionary War was precipitated. It was NOT because of the TAXES, as is generally believed.

The War was won and the new fledgling country drew up an extraordinary document—The Constitution of the United States. In the Constitution they provided that “Congress shall have the power to coin money, regulate the value thereof.”

Every country has its traitor or traitors and this time it was the International Bankers’ stooge, Alexander Hamilton. In 1781, Hamilton established a privately-owned Federal Bank. Most of the capital was supplied by the Bank of England, but in their usual deceitful way, the Bank was named Bank of America. Fortunately, their charter was refused. Alexander Hamilton was successful the second time in 1791. This time the bank was chartered and called the Bank of the United States. The bulk of the capital was supplied by the Rothschilds. So . . . all that was gained by the Revolutionary War was lost once again to the International Bankers. Whosoever controls the monetary system controls the country!

President Jackson Scores Bankers

Andrew Jackson in 1832, when he vetoed the second renewal of the Charter of the Bank of the United States (and he was speaking to the bankers, money lenders and changers) said, “You are a den of vipers. I intend to rout you out, and by the Eternal God I will rout you out! . . . If the people only understood the rank injustice of our money and banking system, there would be a revolution by morning.” There are many in America, in our own time, who have stated the same thing in a different way. Andrew Jackson was right in his own time and he is still right in our time!

The House of the Red Shield was indeed expanding. The Rothschild family, by this time, was earnestly plotting the control of the World. America was the plum. They began plotting the Civil War. Once again they perceived that they could reap a harvest while Christians slaughtered Christians. THEY MANIPULATED MINDS THEN AS THEY DO TODAY. The slavery issue was expanded and exploited until it reached a feverish pitch. All the time the true intents and purposes were to divide and conquer and reap the spoils. The International Vipers sent their stooges over to run the wary. One group would help the South, and one group would help the North. European troops were moved into Mexico, and the siege was about to become a reality.

Czar Alexander II of Russia knew well the sinister plot of the International Bankers. Russia was the only country that had not been toppled by the vipers’ monetary skulduggery. The Czar came to President Lincoln’s rescue. He sent battleships to New York and San Francisco and told the foreign troops that if they dared set foot on American soil they could consider themselves at war with Russia, too! He told his admirals to “be ready to fight any power and take your orders from Abraham Lincoln.” It is sadly true, we killed each other, brother against brother, Christian against Christian, but thanks to the Czar of Russia, the Union was saved.

Bankers Get Control

President Lincoln then turned to the authority of the Constitution and printed $450 million United States notes. This was the one thing the “Vipers” could not tolerate. This would mean that the nation would flourish and prosper without debt. The International Bankers would lose all control over the nation. The Bankers became sufficiently alarmed over this to call a meeting in Washington. As a result the National Bank Act was drawn up. The ground work was laid very surreptitiously in the Hazard circular which appeared from London. It was distributed among the leading money changers, Congressmen and Senators. It reads as follows: “Slavery is likely to

(Continued on Page 57)

Besides the shortage of foreign currency, there has been a 125 per cent increase in the cost of books. (Any readers who wish to contribute either cash or books to such a worthy cause can send their contributions to the Victoria Memorial Library in Salisbury or the Bulawayo Public Library in Bulawayo, Rhodesia.)

In spite of sanctions, however, Air Rhodesia has acquired its first jet aircraft—a DC8, rigged as a cargo carrier to make regular hauls on international routes. The passenger traffic on Air Rhodesia is still restricted to regional flights, using turbo-prop aircraft.

Despite constant harassment in the Western press, the Prime Minister of Rhodesia, Mr. Ian Smith, remains optimistic about the future of his country. Last August he said to me in an exclusive interview, "Rhodesia has been governed since 1923 by people who have their heart in their country and have put their roots down. And therefore we weren't prepared to allow things to happen just for the sake of expedience and convenience which might bring short-term gains, but which would land us with long-term problems. I think this is probably the secret of Rhodesia's successful way of life. We get stronger every day. The only permanent effect that sanctions have had is to stimulate our economy and put us in the position where our industrial development is ten years further ahead than it would have been without sanctions."

In his official Independence Day message of November 11, 1972, Mr. Smith said: "Despite difficulties, Rhodesia is still forging ahead and I can see no reason why it should not continue to do so. The past twelve months have brought both hope and disappointments, but we are not deterred in our efforts to secure our position as an independent nation, acknowledged as such by the free world. The forces ranged against us are as great as ever, but the knowledge that we have friends and supporters spread far and wide is a never-ending source of strength and value to us all."

House of the Red Shield

(Continued from Page 53)

be abolished by the war power and chattel slavery destroyed. This, I and my European friends are in favor of, for slavery is but the owning of labor and carries with it the care of the laborers, while the European plan, led by England, is that CAPITAL SHALL CONTROL LABOR BY CONTROLLING WAGES.

"The great debt that Capitalists will see to it is made out of the war must be used to control the value of money. To accomplish this, government bonds must be used as a banking basis. We are now waiting for the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States to make that recommendation to Congress."

"It will not do to allow green backs, as they are called to circulate as money for any length of time as we cannot control that. But we can control the bonds and through them the banking issues."

With much deceit and cunning the National Bank Act was enacted in 1863. This Act, once again, placed the coining of money back in the hands of the "Vipers." Abraham Lincoln was assassinated and the International Monetary system threw the United States into chaos.

The above article originally appeared in American Challenge of which the author, Merritt Newby, is editor.